was an ex-officio member of the committee that compiled the 2013 hymnal Glory to God, and worked with committees on revisions to the Revised Common Lectionary and the Presbyterian Book of Common Worship.

Retreat Description:

In Christian worship, we are called to offer our whole lives to the triune God, who transforms us for the service of daily living. Why, then, does public worship sometimes seem disconnected from our personal lives, and vice versa? Using the framework of the order of worship for the Service for the Lord's Day, this retreat will explore how we might have a more personal encounter with Jesus Christ through Word and Sacrament (Friday evening), how personal life flows into public worship (Saturday morning), and how public worship flows back out into personal life (Saturday afternoon).

This retreat is sponsored by the Christian Education Committee of the Presbytery of Western North Carolina.
